General Information:

The Bicarburatore Corsa is a former factory bike and was owned by Eugenio Fontanili, who sold the Rumi to James Edwards in the UK. In 2018, the bike was sold to an Austrian Rumi expert who overhauled it and restored it to top technical condition. It was important to him that the originality be preserved. Open telescopic springs on the front fork, the springs on the rear axle, large headlights and modified fork bridges are the main differences to the road bikes. With a top speed of more than 120 km/h, it is a real racer that weighs only 85 kg.
