General Information:

The RCB 1000 won the European Endurance Championship in 1976. With a four-valve cylinder head and 750cc engine, it was an instant success as an endurance racing machine. The design of the RCB1000 was attractive then and remains so today. Motorrad Classic reported on the creation of this impressive replica in four issues in 2018. With official road approval, the future owner has three options. They can display the RCB 1000 in their loft, ride it on the road or take part in racing events.
