General Information:

Development of the XS-1 was completed in 1969. The XS-1 was unveiled at the Tokyo Motor Show. It took several months for the first models to arrive in Germany. Unlike the XS-1, the XS-2 had a front disc brake. The design was based on English motorcycles from the Triumph and BSA brands. Less than 400 of these early models were sold in Germany. We have a very nice example that runs very well. We have not yet replaced the stylish lamp glass for the French market, as we also have French vehicle documents. Of course, we can arrange or prepare German registration at any time. Then engine and frame number are the same.
