General Information:

Edoardo Bianchi built the first motorcycle in 1897. Over the following years, the Milan-based company developed into an innovative enterprise that was successful in racing and, at the same time, continuously refined the production of road bikes. By the end of the 1950s, it became apparent that there was no future for the Bianchi factory. Our Bianchi Mendola dates from the early 1950s, when the world was still in order for the company.
