General Information:

Between 1976 and 1978, BMW produced 12,056 units of this model. With a top speed of almost 190 km/h, the R 100/7 was slightly slower than the R 100 S. The naked BMW impresses with its design, which was typical of BMW motorcycles at the time. Our R 100/7 has been partially restored and is in good original condition. After a fresh service with new tyres, this classic is definitely not only a good choice for collectors, as its good handling and balanced torque curve from the engine are still impressive today.
